DUCKER CASE FOR PLAINTIFF

Jury Brings in Enormous Verdict of $775. Damages.

RESULT A SURPRISE.

Important Cases On the Docket For This Week--Smith Case To-day.

The case of John Ducker vs. the city of Hopkinsville and the Mescham Construction Co. was concluded in circuit court and a verdict rendered against the defendants jointly for $775. The jury was made up of the following jurors from the regular panel: W. H. Gray, Davis Wilkins, Green Moore, Jno. D. Smith, L. R. Smith, L. M. Hill, Lucian P. Pool, Lit. Hord, Jno. C. Davis, A. R. Parker, Abe Myers, J. B. O'Neal.

The plaintiff and Miss Dorothy Adams were thrown from a buggy and injured on the night of August 16, by driving over a pile of cinders on Ninth street. Ducker fell out when the buggy struck the obstruction and the horse continued down the street to Virginia and Miss Adams jumped out as the horse was turning at the postoffice to go to Goley & Hurt's livery stable.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Rob. Wood, charged with writing a threatening letter to Lewis Dawson, col., Feb. 11, was called yesterday and trial entered into. The following jury was made up from the regular panel:

A. F. Boyd, John D. Smith, W. H. Sizemore, Davis Wilkins, W. H. Gray, Lit. Hord, Robt. Witty, John C. Davis, Green Moore, R. D. Gray, Robt. Fears, J. B. O'Neal.

Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith, County Attorney Jno. C. Duffy and Douglas Bell represent the prosecution, and C. H. Bush and J. T. Hanbery the defense.

The taking of testimony was begun at 10 o'clock.

Lewis Dawson, col., H. D. Wallace, Gus Breathitt, W. E. Williamson and Miss Eva Royalty testified for the Commonwealth. Mr. Breathitt stated positively that he saw Rob Wood mail the letter in question between 2 and three p. m., Feb. 11 and took it in charge, sent for Dawson and delivered it in person. He was corroborated by Williamson and Miss Royalty. The defense began at 1 p. m. Wood was introduced and entered a general denial, claiming that he was in Jones & Cannon's saloon from 2 p. m. until after 3 p. m. Feb. 11. Jim Cannon and Mack Dulin were introduced to corroborate this statement. R. M. Anderson and Geo. Keach testified to seeing Wood before 2 o'clock.

MURDERED ON HIS DOORSTEP.

Hiram Hedges Shot Down By Midnight Assassins At His Home.

COLD BLOODED AFFAIR.

Had Agreed To Demands of the Mob That He Destroy Tobacco Beds.

Carlisle, Ky., March 22.—A band of masked and heavily armed night riders shot and killed Hiram Hedges on the doorstep of his home, where he stood and pleaded with them to go away, about 1 o'clock. According to the statement of C. H. Hedges, son of the murdered man, there were about seventy-five men in the party.

Young Hedges says that he was awakened by some one throwing rocks against the house. His father came into his room, carrying a shotgun and said: "Son there are too many of them out there for me to fight." The two then went to the front door, the father leaving his gun. He opened the door and inquired of the men "what they wanted. He was told to step out on the porch, which he did. They then ordered him to come out onto the steps and he again complied. "I want to say to you he said, 'I have never done anything but what was right toward the society. I have planted one bed and intended planting another, but if you will go away and do no harm I will plow up the bed I intended planting and never put canvas on the other. It may be a joke you coming here, but I wish you would go away.'"

At this juncture, a shot was fired. Hedges cried, "I am shot," and staggered back into the house. His son put him on a bed and returned to the door. One of the riders asked "Where's the old man?" "He is shot," replied the young son. Several exclaimed that they did not believe it. Young Hedges asked some of them to leave their guns and come in and see. Six of them came to the house, three entering and the others standing guard at the door. Those who entered came out and reported that Hedges was shot. The gang then rode away up the Lexington and Mayfield turnpike.

Hedges never spoke after being placed on the bed and died about 2 o'clock. He received a charge of No. 6 bird shot in the left side.

In Other Bluegrass Counties.

As the result of a warning, J. H. Nichols, a prominent farmer of Bourbon plowed up his tobacco bed and declared he would raise no tobacco. The warning which was found tacked on his barn, was burned around the edges and spotted with red ink, indicating fire and blood and read as follows: "Unless you destroy your tobacco bed, hell will be to play."

Night riders in Mercer visited the farm of Judge B. F. Roach, near Harrodsburg, and tore the canvas from two tobacco beds. The beds were torn up so that it will be impossible to get plants without removing, and this, Judge Roach declares, will not be done. The beds had been sown by a tenant on the farm.

Oscar V. Fry, superintendent of the S. W. Booker farm, Shelby county, which is located near the scene of the burned Ellis home, has signified his intention of retiring from the farm. Mrs. Fry came to Eminence this morning and Mr. Fry will follow her shortly. All the negro hands and tenants on the farm left the place immediately after the burning of the Ellis home.

LAW AND ORDER ORGANIZATION

Kentuckians, in Self-defense, Must Rouse Themselves into Action

ADDRESS OF LEAGUE.

Not Only Prosperity But Good Name of Kentucky Endangered.

Louisville, Ky., March 23.—Characterizing the situation in Kentucky as regards night riding as a crisis in the history of the Commonwealth, and calling upon all true citizens to rouse themselves and organize for the defense of property and the honor of their State, the Law and Order League of Kentucky last evening issued an address to the citizens of Kentucky. The manuscript, the preparation of which was directed by resolution, was prepared by Judge Alex. P. Humphrey, and has been, or will be, scattered throughout the whole State.

Address to Kentuckians.

The text of the address to the public is as follows:

Fellow-citizens of Kentucky:—A crisis has arisen in the history of Kentucky which demands the best thought, the highest patriotism, the sternest resolution on the part of honest and law-abiding citizens. The patriotism of Kentuckians has led them to respect and to obey the law; courage and honor have led them to defend and to enforce it at the expense of fortune and of life. The result has been peace with honor. Throughout the State men have felt safe in their homes, in their property, in their persons; especially have they felt secure against secret assault and against mob violence.

Every citizen who reads or hears, knows the details of recent occurrences. They are too humiliating and disgraceful to the State and to her people to be rehearsed. The men engaged in such work are not Kentuckians, or they are renegade Kentuckians. They have renounced every virtue of the Kentuckian; his honor, his courage, his patriotism.

Fellow-citizens, we call upon you to organize for the defense of your homes, your persons, for defense of the persons and homes of your neighbors, for defense of the honor of your State. Organize public opinion in your city and your county. This, if done in a spirit of true patriotism, will be effective. At present this seems to be the most effective method of redress. Organize. Let all who violate the law know that you are organized to uphold the law; to enforce justice; to force your law officers to do their duty regardless of who may suffer. Give all to know that you are organized to suppress lawlessness from whatever quarter or in whatever form it may come; above all, that you are resolved to rid your State of the disgrace and dishonor inflicted upon her by midnight assaults of masked men upon defenseless people.

Not only the honor of your State, but her material interests, demand action, firm, resolute and general, on the part of all good citizens. The injury done and threatened is incalculable. It is irreparable except by the force of organized public opinion and action.

The immediate formation of law and order leagues in every city and county is earnestly urged and the co-operation of the State organization is pledged to the furtherance of such a plan. Blank forms will be supplied by the secretary.

SUBSCRIBERS

TAKE NOTICE OF THE FOLLOWING.

Important Ruling by the Postoffice Department.

Renewals of Subscriptions.

(3) A reasonable time will be allowed publishers to secure renewals of subscription, but unless subscribers are expressly renewed after the term for which they are paid within the following periods:

- Dailies, within three months;
- Try Weeklies, within six months;
- Semi-weeklies, within nine months;
- Weeklies, within one year;
- Semi-monthlies, within three months;
- Monthlies, within four months;
- Bi-monthlies, within six months;
- Quarterlies, within six months;

they shall not be counted in the legitimate list of subscribers, and copies mailed on account thereof shall not be accepted for mailing, at the second-class postage rate of one cent a pound, but may be mailed at the transient second-class postage rate of one cent for each four ounces or fraction thereof, prepaid by stamps, affixed. The right of a publisher to extend credit for subscriptions to his publication is not denied or questioned, but his compliance or non-compliance with this regulation will be taken into consideration in determining whether the publication is entitled to transmission at the second-class postage rates.

In accordance with the above ruling all mail subscribers to the Kentuckian who are in arrears six months must be dropped from our mailing list on April 1. The Department will compel us to do this. Subscribers may pay any fraction of a year, if they prefer, so that they keep within the limit.

AX GRINDING VS. BUSINESS.

Municipal Ownership in Practice Seen Through the Eyes of a Grand Forks Citizen.

In an article on the gas situation in Grand Forks, N. D., Light quotes F. J. Janer, a prominent real estate man of that city, as follows: "As a real estate man and a member of the real estate board I did not vote at the recent meeting of the board for the issue of the $2,000,000 bonds for the purpose of buying the gas plant, and I stated at that time to the board that I was opposed to the ownership by the city of the gas plant."

"I think that we have one too many of our city utilities already managed and operated by a committee of the city council. Our experience with the water business as it is managed by our council committee is not one which would make it desirable for us to place any other utility in the hands of another such committee. The difference between management by the council committee and management by a private corporation is this:

"The council committee are grinding their axes and making use of it for their political interests, whereas a private corporation is where a man invests and looks at it only in the way of a business enterprise, which it is willing to push in any way where it can see an increase of income. One is using it for influence and the other to earn dollars."

"If you want a water main put in and apply to the city for it, you are lucky if you get it inside of three or four years. If you want a gas main put in and apply to the gas company for it, the company will have the main in time to deliver you gas when your house is finished."

"I should very much like to have an option on the city water plant at the cost of reproducing the same as it is today, and if I had it I could within four months place it with reliable parties who would agree to sell water at a less rate than we are now paying and who would not ask semi-occasional rates that the city tax itself in order to enlarge the plant, build reservoirs and filtration plants. They would simply look at these matters as to whether they would pay for putting in, and if the people are finished, the money themselves for the improvements."

OFFICIAL EXTRAVAGANCE.

Ohio Has Been Robbed by Its Officials

The state bureau of accounting is giving us something new to think about. It relates to extravagance in office and specifies the purchase of supplies, particularly stationery, as the direction which this extravagance has taken. Our news columns have been giving full particulars, showing that the people have been robbed of thousands of dollars by this excessive and needless expenditure of the public funds. It has been discovered that counties have been formed by county officers for "padding" from needless purchases. And the evidence is so plain that the officers have hustled to return the money. This occurred in Adams county, but we were informed by the bureau that this form of graft covers the state.

It is an alarming condition—to see how those public officers steal from those who have trusted them. We say "steal," for that is what it is, and it is hoped that the prosecuting attorneys will not permit it to pass for anything else. A man who will make a $100 purchase and rake off $100 from the price paid is as sure a thief as any man behind the bars in the penitentiary. We must throw away our soft gloves and handle things as they are or this country will go to the dogs. It is not simply the loss of the money, but the spirit in which the extravagance is committed is as fatal as treason. It runs down through the arteries of our public and private life like strychnine through the blood.

It should be the doctrine of our public service that extravagance and needless expenditure is a crime—that official life is corrupt to the extent that it expends the public money beyond what is necessary to properly perform the public duty. That is the ideal that we need in the public service, and it is hoped the bureau of public accounting will keep on until that ideal becomes regnant in the official life—Ohio State Journal.

POLITICS RESPONSIBLE.

Ever Present Reason for the Failure of Most M. O. Enterprises
The Duluth Evening Herald recently printed an interview with G. R. Cosley, a representative of an electrical supply house, whose business gives him an insight into the workings of municipal lighting plants. Mr. Cosley thus diagnoses the trouble:

"I am responsible for more than any other in the failure of most municipal ventures of any kind, and particularly so in the case of electric lighting plants. That is too much politics. Too much political relations, and the machinery is out of order and the town is without light most of the time just because every new mayor appoints a different superintendent and every alderman and official who has a political parasite he wants to reward gives him a job at the municipal plant. They do not do their work properly, and the plant goes to ruin."

A Heavy Load to Carry

"ALL IS WELL THAT ENDS WELL."

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be properly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. On the other hand the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion, and in turn the nerves are not fed on good, red blood, and we see symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill-health. It is the head work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor, thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip, bronchitis and consumption. Purify the body at once with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—a rare combination of native medicinal roots without a particle of alcohol or dangerous drugs.

No man is stronger than his stomach. Let the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his muscles would soon fail. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has insufficient food he loses strength. If he has no food he dies. Food is converted into nutrition through the stomach and bowels. It depends on the strength of the stomach to what extent food eaten is digested and assimilated. People can die of starvation who have abundant food to eat. When the stomach and its associate organs of digestion and nutrition do not perform their duty, thus the stomach is really the vital organ of the body. If the stomach is weak the body will be weak also, because it is upon the stomach the body relies for its strength. And as the body considered as a whole is made up of the several members and organs, so the weakness of the body as a consequence of "weak" stomach will be distributed among the organs which compose the body. If the body is weak because it is ill-nourished that physical weakness will be found in body and limbs and in head and feet equally. So also will the weakness be found in such organs as the heart, liver, kidneys, etc., being proportionately weak according to the amount of the action of their daily ration of nutrition.

By way of example take the case of the Assistant Treasurer of the Catholic Priests at Quebec, Mr. Louis P. P. P.

"For years after my health began to fail my head grew dizzy, eyes pained me, and my stomach was sore all the time, while everything I would eat would seem to lie heavy in my stomach. The doctors claimed that it was sympathetic trouble due to dyspepsia, and prescribed for me, and although I took their powders regularly I was no better. My wife advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—and I bought a bottle and we soon found that it began to improve me. I kept up the treatment. I took on flesh, my stomach became normal, the digestive organs worked perfectly and I soon began to look like a different man. I can now eat a full bill of fare for what your medicine has done for me and I certainly feel like a new man."

YES, SECRET OUT.
To refute the many false and malicious attacks, bogus formulas and other untruthful statements published by competing and disreputable medicine men concerning Dr. Pierce's World-famed Family Medicine the Doctor has decided to publish all the ingredients entering into his "Golden Medical Discovery." Hereafter every bottle of this medicine (leaving the great Laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y.) will contain a full list of all the ingredients entering into the compound, printed in plain English.

Dr. Pierce's pills, first put up by old Dr. J. C. Pierce, have been made into a more perfect form. They are made of pure vegetable matter, concentrated and refined from the best roots and plants. They speedily relieve and cure constipation, indigestion, biliousness, liver and bowels and their attendant distressful ailments. One or two a laxative, three or four a cathartic.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Christopher Columbus.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

He met rebuff
after rebuff,
but would not give up his dream.

FOR eighteen years Christopher Columbus cherished the dream of finding land to the west. This time was spent in ineffectual attempts to get money for the undertaking. Almost every sovereign of Europe was appealed to in vain. Poor, friendless, almost alone, regarded by many as insane, Columbus met rebuff after rebuff, but would not give up his dream. Finally he appealed to Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain. Ferdinand was not convinced, but Isabella was more favorably inclined and in the end went so far as to pawn her own jewels for the enterprise.

With the fitting out of his expedition the troubles of the great discoverer were not ended. When twenty days or more out in an unknown sea, his sailors began to murmur, urging him to turn back. At last the mutiny broke out into open mutiny. Still the bold navigator would not give up. Quelling the mutiny with whatever measures were necessary, he promised a reward to the first sailor who discovered land. At last the voyage was ended, and a goal greater than he himself knew was won.

In all history there are few more inspiring examples of faith than that of Columbus. He had only his own ideal to support him. Every one else doubted it. Nearly a score of years passed, in which every attempt to realize his dream met with failure. It is wonderful that doubt did not assail his own heart. His was a faith, if not to remove mountains, at least to give new worlds into view. So great were his troubles that they made him white-headed at thirty. They pursued him even to the end of his life. At one time he was thrown into prison. At nearly all times he was misunderstood. Saddest of all, he died without knowing that he had found the way to continents and that his humble trip across the sea would open a new era in the history of mankind.

Columbus was of a genuinely religious nature, which may account for much of the trustful faith he had in his own inward promptings.

Gentleman is from the French "gentilhomme" and means one who belongs to the gens, or stock. In old Roman law gens-men, or gentlemen, were those only who had a family name. They were born of free parents, had no slave in their ancestral line and had never been degraded to a lower rank.

Kentucky's Disgrace.

The Louisville Post's poet-cartoonist gives pictures of several night riders and follows them with these verses:

They were bred in Old Kentucky,
Where they scrape tobacco beds
Where they turn the barns at midnight,
And the house tops 'er your heads:
They were bred in Old Kentucky,
Best it, boy, you're sure unlucky
If they catch you with tobacco in your sheds.
They were bred in Old Kentucky,
Where they raised tobacco some,
Until those gay night riders
Put the rain on the burn;
Now they raise in Old Kentucky
H—ll, and, yes, you're surely lucky
If you haven't got a share of it to come.

HELD OVER.

Hopkins County. Negro In Uncle Sam's Clutches.

U. S. Deputy Marshal Arment arrived yesterday morning with Geo. Gilbert Parsons, Col., whom he created near St. Charles, Hopkins county, charged with selling liquor without a license. The negro was placed in jail and later had his examining trial before Commissioner Gots and was held over to the Federal grand jury. Bond was fixed at $200. Parsons had not furnished all last evening and arrangements are being made to take him to jail at Owensboro.

County Judge Jas. T. Wilhoit, of Goodfellow county, declined to ask Geo. Wilhoit for a company of soldiers in Versailles, saying he did not think it was practicable to provide soldiers for every farmer who wished raise tobacco.

STATE FAIR CAUSES BETTER FARMING METHODS.

To Win Prizes and Reputation Tennessee Farmers Are Preparing to Raise Bigger and Better Crops than Ever Before.

Nashville, Tenn., March 20.—From the reports coming into the State Fair headquarters from all over Tennessee the prospect for keen rivalry among the farmers is even better than it was at this time last year. From every part of the State come the news that the most progressive farmers are making preparations to raise such crops as will be worth entering and will stand a chance of winning premiums at the 1908 State Fair.

Maj. T. J. Key, editor of the Southern Agriculturist, who will again have charge of the miniature experiment farm on the Fair grounds, says that never before have farmers taken such an interest in fine seeds and in improved live stock as they are taking now. In arousing this interest the various county fairs and the State Fair have played a potent part. It is this educational element of the Tennessee State Fair that is getting the most careful attention of the officials. Their idea is that the first purpose of this exhibition is to help teach the farmers of the State how to get the best possible results from their lands. There is no better means to this end than for the men and women who have done well to come and show what they have done and how they did it. To encourage Tennessee farmers to do this—to co-operate with the Fair management in making this educational feature effective—the Association and the State Legislature offer liberal prizes for the best displays—prizes well worth working for.

It is largely because of the number who intend to compete for these awards—and the reputation that goes with winning them—that a distinct improvement in farming methods has been noticed throughout the State.

The Princess Virginia

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON.
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor," "Rosemary in Search of a Father," Etc.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Miss Portman listened, but she understood only such words of Rhett as she had picked up in the last few weeks she could merely surmise that he was ordering the crowd out of his way because he had a special message from the lord chancellor to the burgomaster.

The human wall opened. The man darted through, and Miss Portman was dragged after him by the princess. So close to him had they kept that they might easily be supposed to be under his escort, and, in any case, they passed before there was time to dispute their right of way.

"It must be the secretary of Herr Koffman, the new burgomaster," Virginia heard one man say to another, "and those ladies are with him."

On and on through the crowd passed the man in gray and crimson, oblivious to the two women who were using him. There was something about that disagreeable back of his which proclaimed him a man of but one idea at a time. Close to the front line of spectators, however, there came a check.

"We can't do better."

People were vexed at the audacity of the girl and the obduracy of the man who would have pushed them back, but at the critical second the blue and silver uniformed band of Rheatta's crack regiment, the Imperial Life guards, struck up an air which told that the emperor was coming. Promptly the small group concerned forgot its grievance in excitement, crowding together so that Virginia was pressed to the front, and only Miss Portman was pushed ruthlessly into the background. The poor lady raised a feeble protest in English which only heeded unless it were the man who had inadvertently acted as plover. At her shrill outburst he turned quickly, as if startled by the sudden cry, and Virginia was so close to him that her chin almost touched his shoulder. For the first time she had a glimpse of his face, which matched the yellow wax of his neck in pallor.

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Hopkinsville Will Show You How.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it.

But it won't cure it. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it; reach the cause; relieve the pain. Mrs. Eva Hobbs, living on North Seminary street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills, as they are, without doubt, the best kidney medicine in the world. When they permanently cured me of my trouble in the summer of 1923, I allowed my experience to be published in our local papers so that others who suffer as I did might know what course to pursue to get relief. I was a sufferer for years with terrible pains through my kidneys and down through my loins. There were such bearing down pains at times that I actually had to give up and lie down until the pain subsided. The secretions from the kidneys were irregular in action and painful, in passing. I tried remedy after remedy, rubbed my back with liniment, and wore plasters but received little or no relief. Doan's Kidney Pills made a complete and permanent cure four years ago, and it only required two boxes to do it. I have been perfectly free from any kidney complaint ever since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The girl shrunk away from him in alarm. "What a devil's head," she thought—"a wicked face and awful eyes!" He looked frightened. I wonder why!

Assured that the sharp cry did not concern him, the man turned to the front again, and, having obtained his object—a place in the foremost rank of the crowd, with one incidentally for the princess—he proceeded to take from his breast a roll of parchment tied with narrow ribbon and sealed with a large red seal. As he drew it out and rearranged his coat he had trembled. It was yellow white. The fellow seemed to have no blood in him.

Virginia, standing now shoulder to shoulder with the man in gray and crimson, had just time to feel a stirring of dislike and perhaps curiosity when a great cheer arose from the ranks of the crowd. The square rang with a roar of loyal acclamation. Men waved tall hats, soft hats and green peasant hats with feathers. Beautifully dressed women grouped on the high decorated balconies waved handkerchiefs or scattered roses from gilded baskets. Women in gorgeous costumes from far provinces heaved up half frightened, half laughing children, and then a white figure on a white charger came riding into the square under the triumphal arch wreathed with flags and flowers.

Other figures followed—men in uniforms of green and gold and red on cool black horses—yet Virginia saw only the white figure, shining, wonderful.

Under the glittering helmet of steel, with its gold eagle, the dark face was clear cut as a cameo, and the eyes were bright with a proud light. To the crowd he was the emperor, a fine, popular, brilliant young man, who smiled his country better than it had been ruled yet by any of his house and, above all, provided many a pleasing spectacle for the people, but to Virginia he was far more—an ideal. He smiled at her as he passed, and she felt a thrill of joy as he looked at her. "What if he should never love me?" was the one sharp thought which pierced her pride of him.

The people were proud, too, as he passed, with its gold and silver trappings, the crowned jewels of many orders sparkling on his breast, while he saluted his subjects in his soldier's way.

For a moment there was a pause, save for a shouting, which rose and rose again. Then he halted, where, upon important looking men with ribbons and decorations came forward, bowing, to receive the emperor. The emperor, of course, forgetting the statue of Rheatta was about to be.

To reach the great crimson draped platform on which he was to stand the emperor was obliged to pass within a few feet of Virginia. His gaze dashed over the gray crowd. What if it should rest upon her? The girl's heart was in her throat. She could feel it beating there, and for a moment the tall white figure was lost in a mist which dimmed her eyes.

She had forgotten how she came to this place of joy, how she forgot the pale man in gray and red to whom she owed her good fortune, but suddenly, while her heart was at its loudest and the mist before her eyes at its thickest, she grew conscious again of his existence, poignantly conscious of his close presence. So near he stood that a quick start, a gathering of his muscles like a spring, and for a moment the mist was through her own body.

The mist was burst up in the flame of a strange enlightenment, a clarity of vision which she never forgot. It was here of the day, the throng and the wax white man beside her, but something which was in the soul of that man as well.

"He is going to kill the emperor!" It was as if a voice spoke the words in her ear. She knew now why she had struggled to win this place, why she had succeeded, what she had to do or die in failing to do.

Leopold was not half a dozen yards away and was coming nearer. No one but Virginia suspected evil. She alone felt the thrill of a murderer's nerves, the tense spring of his muscles. She alone guessed what the roll of parchment hid.

"Now—now!" the voice seemed to whisper again, and she had no fear. While the crowd shouted wildly for "Emperor Leo!" a man in gray and red leaped, cutlike, at the white figure that advanced. Something sharp and bright flashed out from a roll of parchment, catching the sun in a streak of steel light.

Leopold saw, but not in time to avert. The crowd shrieked, rushed forward too late, and the blade would have drunk his life had not the girl who had felt all, seen all, struck up the arm before it fell.

The rest was darkness for her. She knew only that she was sobbing and that the gray figure, with its crowded balconies, its ropes of green, its waving flags, seemed to collapse upon her and blot her out.

It was Leopold who caught her as she swayed, and while the people surged around the thwarted murderer the emperor sprang up the steps of the great crimson platform with the girl against his heart.

It was her blood that stained the pure white of his uniform, the blood from her arm, wounded in his defense. And, holding her up, he stood dominating the crowd.

Down there at the foot of the steps the man in gray and red was like a spent fox among the hounds, and Leopold's people in the fury of their rage would have torn him in pieces as the hounds tear the fox despite the cord of police the emperor rode him, but the ruler of the nation bade his subjects fall back.

"My people shall not be assassinated!"

he cried to them. "Let the law deal with the assassin. It is my will. Look at me alive and unhurt. Now give your cheers for the lady who has saved my life, and the ceremonies shall go on."

Three cheers had he said? They gave three times three and had fair to split the skies with shouts for the emperor. While women laughed and

"Let the law deal with the madman," wept and all eyes were upon that noble pair on the red platform something limp and gray was hurried out of sight and off to prison. On a signal the national anthem began. The voices of the people joined the brass instruments. All Kronberg was singing or asking "Who is she?" of the girl at the emperor's side.

CHAPTER SEVEN

IT is those in the thick of battle who can afterward tell about it, and to the princess those five minutes—moments the most tremendous—the most vital of her life—were afterward in memory like a dream.

She had seen that a man was ghastly pale; she had caught a gleam of fear in his eye; she had felt a tigerish quiver run through his frame as the crowd pressed him against her. Instinct—and here—had told her the rest and taught her how to act.

Vaguely she recalled later that she had thrown herself forward and struck up the knife. An impression of that knife as the light gleamed on it alone was clear. Sickening, she had thought of the dull sound it would make in felling, of the blood that would spout from a rot in white wood among the jeweled orders. She had thought, as one thinks in dying, of existence in a world empty of Leopold, and she had known that unless he could be saved her one wish was to go out of the world with him.

More than this she had not thought or known. What she did was done scarcely by her own volition, and she seemed to wake with a start at last, to hear herself sobbing and to feel the throbbing of a hot pain in her arm. A hundred hands—not quick enough to save, yet quick enough to follow the lead given by her—had fought to seize the man in gray and stop a second blow. They had borne him out, and while, as for Virginia, her work done, she forgot everything and every one but Leopold.

Recalling she had heard him speak to the crowd and told herself dreamily that were she dying his voice could bring her back if he called. She even listened to each word that rang out like a cathedral bell above the hubbub. Still he held her, and when the cheers came she scarcely understood that they were for her as well as for Leopold, the emperor. Afterward, the necessity for public action over, he bent his head close enough to whisper, "Thank you," and then for Virginia every syllable was clear.

"You are the bravest woman alive," he said. "I had to keep them from killing the ruffian, but thank you I can speak to you alone. I know you for what you did with my whole heart, and I pray heaven you're not seriously hurt."

"No, not hurt and very happy," the princess answered, hardly knowing what she said. She felt like a soul released from its body, floating in blue ether. What could it matter if that body scolded or died? Leopold was safe, and she had saved him.

He pointed to her sleeve. "The knife struck you. Your arm is bleeding, and the wound must be seen immediately by my own surgeon. Would that could go with you myself, but duty keeps me here. You understand that. Baron von Lyndel and his wife will be once take you home wherever you may be staying. They?"

"But I would rather stop and see the rest," said Virginia. "I'm quite well now, not even weak, and I can go down to my friend."

"If you're able to stop, it must be with me," answered Leopold.

"After the service you have done for me and for the country it is your place."

The ladies of the court, who, with their husbands, had been waiting to congratulate Leopold, crowded round the girl as the emperor turned to them with a look and gesture of invitation. A sent was given her, and the arm in its blood-stained sleeve was hastily bound up. She was the heroine of the day, dividing honors with her hero.

CORTRIGHT METAL SHINGLES

NEVER LEAK

What never leak? Exactly, never leak, never needs repairs of any kind, and last as long as the building itself. Neither melting snow, nor the worst driving rain can possibly reach the interior of the building that's covered with Cortright Metal Shingles. Pretty good recommendation isn't it? In addition we might add they're fire-proof and lightning proof too. Think of it! and they are not as expensive as other kinds of roofing. Step in and we'll show them to you.

MR. BRYAN'S OPINIONS

The plan of guaranteed bank deposits has probably found favor, among all classes of people and irrespective of political affiliation, more rapidly than any other public question.

The new state of Oklahoma has already enacted a law taxing state banks, the fund thus accumulated to be used in paying the depositors of any state bank that from any cause becomes unable to meet its obligations. A special session of the Kansas legislature has been called for the purpose of enacting legislation similar to the Oklahoma plan. The governor of Nebraska is considering the advisability of calling a special session of the legislature on account of the growing belief among the people that protection to bank depositors in the form of state or federal guarantees of their deposits will stop the hoarding of money, bring into circulation sufficient currency to conduct the business of the country, and prevent a recurrence of such disastrous panics as the one through which we are now passing.

Mr. Bryan has been an advocate of a law guaranteeing deposits in state and national banks since 1893. Mr. Bryan, in discussing the tariff questions, insists that residents of the United States should be permitted to buy home-made goods at home at as low a price as the foreigner can buy American-made goods abroad. He also insists that our government should be by and for the people as a whole, rather than by and for the trusts, and administered in the interest of a few beneficiaries of the trust system. He believes that national legislation for the purpose of better regulation and control of interstate commerce and common carriers should supplement state legislation, and not be a substitute for state legislation.

Mr. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, reflects his opinions each week on questions of public importance and in its columns may also be found his magazine articles, public speeches, addresses and lectures, which are referred to in the daily press from day to day.

If you are interested in political questions, if you desire to keep in touch with the progress of the campaign and to read Mr. Bryan's campaign speeches send sixty cents to The Commoner, and the paper will be sent to you each week until the close of the next presidential campaign.

Postoffice money order, currency or stamps will be accepted. Only sixty cents. Address The Commoner, Lincoln, Neb.

among the brilliant assemblage on the emperor's platform to whom Lady Mowbray and her daughter had not a letter of introduction from their invaluable friend. But no one knew at this moment of any title to their recognition possessed by the girl other than the right she had earned by her splendid deed. All smiled on her through grateful tears, though there were some who would have given their ten fingers to have stepped into her place.

Thus Virginia sat through the ceremonies, careless that thousands of eyes were on her face, thinking only of one pair of eyes, which spared a glance for her now and then, hardly seeing the statue of Rhettia, whose glorious marble womanhood unveiled roused a storm of enthusiasm from the crowd, hearing only the short, stirring speech made by Leopold.

When everything was over and the people had no excuse for their awe to see the emperor ride away and the great personages disperse, Leopold turned again to Virginia.

All the world was listening, of course; all the world was watching; too, and no matter what his inclination might have been, his words could be but few.

Once more he thanked and praised her for her courage, her presence of mind; thanked her for remaining as if she had been granting a favor to him and asked her where she was staying in Kronburg; as he promised himself the honor of sending to inquire for her health that evening.

His desire would be to call at once in person, he added; but, owing to the programme arranged for this day and several days to follow, not only each hour, but each moment, would be officially occupied. These birthday festivities were troublesome, but duty must be done, and then, Leopold repeated, when he had Miss Mowbray's name and address, the court surgeon and physician would be commanded to attend upon her without delay.

With these words, and a courteous air, he parted, the emperor was gone, Baron von Lyndal, grand master of ceremonies, and his baroness having been told off to take care of Miss Mowbray.

In another mood it would have pricked Virginia's sense of humor to see Baron von Lyndal's almost shocked surprise at discovering her to be the daughter of that Lady Mowbray whom she was asked to meet. Luckily all the letters of introduction had reached their destination, and she was waiting according to the etiquette in Rhettia for Lady Mowbray to announce her arrival in Kronburg by sending cards to the household. But Virginia had no heart for laughter now.

She had been on the point of forgetting until reminded by a dig from the spur of necessity that she was only a misquarrel acting her borrowed part in a pageant. For the first time since she had hopefully taken it up that part became detestable. She would have given almost anything to throw it off and be herself, for nothing less than clear sincerity seemed worthy of this day and the event which crowned it.

Nevertheless, in the vulgar language of proverb which no well brought up princess should ever stoop to use, she had made her own bed, and she must lie in it. It would not do for her suddenly to give out to the world of Kronburg that she was not, after all, Miss Mowbray, but Princess Virginia of the Kingdom of Drippe. That would not be fair to the grand duchess, who had yielded to her wishes, nor fair to her own plans. Above all, it would not be fair to the emperor, handicapped as he now was by a debt of gratitude. No; Miss Mowbray she was, and Miss Mowbray she must for the present remain.

Naturally the grand duchess fainted when her daughter was brought back with the arm in its blood-stained sleeve was hastily bound up. With ominous red stains upon the gray background of her traveling dress. But the wound was neither deep nor dangerous. The court surgeon was as consoling as he was complimentary, and by the time that messengers from the palace had arrived with inquiries from the emperor and invitations to the emperor's ball the mother of the heroine could dispense with her salaried retinue.

She had fortunately much to think of. There was the important question of dress for the ball tomorrow night; there was the still more pressing question of the newspapers, which must not be allowed to publish the borrowed name of Mowbray lest complications should arise, and there were the questions to be asked by Virginia: How had she felt? How had she dared? How had the emperor looked, and what had the emperor said? If it had been better for the grand duchess to faint it was equally natural that she should not faint twice. She began to believe, after all, that Providence smiled upon Virginia and her adventure, and she wondered whether the princess' white satin embroidered with seed pearls or the silver spangled blue tulle would be more becoming to wear to the ball.

Next day the Rhettian newspapers devoted columns to the attack upon the emperor by an anarchist from a certain province (once Italian), who had disguised himself as an official in the employ of the burgomaster. There were long paragraphs in praise of the lady who, with marvellous courage and presence of mind, had sprung between the emperor and the assassin, receiving on the arm with which she had shielded Emperor Leo a glancing blow from the weapon aimed at the imperial breast; but, thanks to a few earnestly inspiring words written by Lady Mowbray to Baron von Lyndal, commands impressed upon the mind of the hotel and the fact that Rhettian editors are not as modern as Americans in their methods, the lady was not named. She was a foreigner and a stranger to the capital of Rhettia. She was, according to the papers, "as yet unknown."

On the overthrow of the monarchy of Louis Philippe a Sunday crowd visited the Jardin des Plantes and was amazed to find the live specimen of the Bengal tiger still bearing the label of "Le Tigre Royal." Nothing would serve the furious crowd but that at once on the spot the authorities should cause the tiger to be "Tigre National," and they did—London Academy.

WARNINGS OF DEATH.

Chicago Mayor and Police Chief to Be Shot With Poisoned Steel Points.

Chicago, March 20.—It became known yesterday that sensational letters threatening a novel and hideous form of assassination have been received lately by Mayor House, and Chief of Police Shippy and Assistant Chief Schuetter.

The letters inclosed a dozen or more steel points. They were smooth, bright and sharp. The letter to the Mayor was written in a good, regular hand and couched in grammatical, if terrible, terms.

The writer said he was one of a number of persons banded together to kill the Mayor and other officials. A revolver, he said, had been constructed to shoot cartridges composed of steel points, samples which were inclosed.

The shooting would be noiseless and the steel points, the writer said, were dipped in deadly poison. By means of this gun a dose of fatal poison could be shot into the system of the intended victim and death would ensue at once.

MUCH BUSINESS

Of a Routine Character Disposed of By City Council.

Rigid Fire Protection Ordinance Passed and Preparations made for Sanitary Work April 1,

The city council met Friday night in regular session with a full attendance. Clerk Tibbs was ill and City Attorney Walter Knight acted as clerk.

The bill of the Water Co. for moving its pipes at the North Main street bridge, $214, was referred to the city attorney for investigation.

Ordinances were passed ordering down a concrete pavement on the west side of Virginia street, between 4th and 5th; ordering down a pavement of brick on North Main street in front of the lots of Mrs. S. L. Bowling, J. E. Cliborne and Meek Witty, and curb and pavement in front of the Garth & Schroeder property, and ordering down a stone curbing and cinder walk on the west side of 4th street, between Main and Virginia.

The investigation of the matter of the house on Virginia street near 5th, that projects on the sidewalk two feet, was referred to the street committee.

Unfinished curbing orders on East 17th and West 17th streets were ordered sold to the highest bidder and the work completed at once.

The matter of widening West 18th street was referred to the street committee; also the matter of extending Cedar street through the land of J. B. Dade under a proposition received from Mr. Dade.

The Mayor reported the appointment of a number of special policemen for guard duty, since the first of the year.

An ordinance was passed requiring adequate fire escapes in all school buildings and public halls.

The matter of improving new street through Campbell property, between 17th and 18th, was referred to the street committee.

Chairman Carroll, of the cemetery committee, reported that 'the city was deriving no rentals from the powder magazine on the cemetery property and that John Young claimed to be using it without rental, under a contract made with a former council 15 years ago, by which he was to keep it in repair. The city attorney was directed to notify Mr. Young that his contract was not recognized by the present council and to secure possession by law if the magazine was not surrendered. It is being used by Mr. Young and others for the storage of dynamite. The application of R. F. Burchett for a building permit to erect a small store room on East 9th street, east of Belmont, was referred to the building committee for further investigation.

The appointment of a police officer for sanitary work April 1st was placed in the hands of the Mayor.

The Mayor reported that the suit of the city against Winfree & Knight had been compromised on satisfactory terms.

Several appropriations were made for small amounts.

A motion was passed empowering the Mayor to compel the two colored schools to make certain alterations for fire protection at once, under penalty of having the schools closed.

When a man writes as follows don't you think he means it? Mr. S. G. Williams, of Powderly, Texas, says, 'I have suffered for years with Kidney and Bladder trouble, using every preparation I came across and taking many prescriptions all without relief until my attention was called to Pineules. After 30 days' trial ($1.00), I am feeling fine. Money refunded if not satisfied. Sold by Anderson-Fowler Drug Co., Incorporated.

APRIL TWENTIETH

Special Term of Court Will be Held to Try Kelly Cases.

Hon. James C. Sims, of Bowling Green, who was appointed several weeks ago by Gov. Willson to try the case of the Commonwealth against John W. Kelly and four civil cases against the bondsman of Kelly, has called a special term of the Trigg circuit court for the 20th of April to try these cases.

If all the cases are tried at this term of court, ten days or two weeks will be consumed.—Record.

The Rummage Sale to be given by the D. A. R. is the first of the kind to be given in this city. In other places it has been given with great success. The articles asked for are such as any housekeeper will be glad to dispose of at this time of the year.

FOR Ladies THIS

J-23

Great suffering is the lot of all women, who neglect the health of their womanly organs. No reason to do so, any more than to neglect a sore throat, colic, or any other disease, that the right kind of medicine will cure. Take for all your womanly ills. It can never do harm, and is certain to do good.

Mrs. Sallie H. Blair, of Johnson City, Tenn., writes: "I had suffered from womanly troubles for sixteen months, and had four doctors, but they could not help me, until I began to take Wine of Cardui. Now I think I am about well." At all reliable druggists, in $1.00 bottles. Try it.

10,000 BAPTISTS.

Dr. E. Y. Mullins Says Louisville Can Secure Conference in 1909.

Louisville, Ky., March 22.—Assurance of hotel accommodations and the entertainment of the delegates is the only thing necessary, in the opinion of Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, to bring the annual Southern Baptist Convention to Louisville in 1909. Dr. Mullins explains that, as the convention comprises the Baptist Women's Mission Union, the Southern Baptist Young People's Union and the Southern Baptist Educational Society, there will be about 10,000 persons in attendance.

An invitation to hold the convention here was extended by the directors of the Board of Trade yesterday, and Dr. Mullins says he is advised that Louisville is the choice of the delegates, provided the conditions named can be met. An effort is to be made at this convention to increase the permanent endowment fund of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary from $600,000 to $1,000,000.

CHANGED ITS MIND.

L. & N. Will Not Cut Wages of Employees.

Washington, March 20.—A tip went out here today that the L. & N. Railroad Company has abandoned its intention to cut the wages of its employees. Some time ago the company intimated that it would be obliged to make a cut as a result of the President's policies. The President ordered an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission as to whether there is such a condition of traffic as to warrant a cut in wages. The report has not been made public, but the government's inside information is that the company has changed its mind and will maintain the present wage scale.

DIRECTOGO 34217.

In the Stud Season of 1908-1909, This Being His Home and is Here to Stay. Christian County's Best Bred Trotting Stallion, Also the Best Individual.

DIRECTOGO is a dark, rich mahogany bay, 15½ hands high, two hind white feet and as fine a boned horse as you ever saw. Has natural style, speed and action at all times in or out of harness.

His colts have action like horses that have been educated. Directogo is double gaited and some of his colts are the best of combined horses.

Directogo is the only 9-year-old horse here or ever was here that has a colt with a record. Ruby Fry, colt of Directogo, making a record of 2:13½ last fall in Pennsylvania, in the 7th heat.

For racing or road use you can't make a mistake by breeding to Directogo, and for sale horses you can refer back to last fall during the panic and money scare when four two-year-olds, unbroken, and one three-year-old, broken, averaged over $250 per head, at VanCleve's sale, these being all of his get sold in this sale.

Directogo will make the season of 1908 at my stable, Hopkinsville, Ky., and we will be glad to have you look him over, ask for tabulated pedigree, and you will see the best bred horse in Western Kentucky.

TERMS: $20.00 cash or bankable note, with return privileges.

We have grass paddocks and box stalls for any that want to leave their mares. Will use every precaution to avoid accident, but not responsible should any occur.

Very respectfully,

J. E. COOPER.
